I've been walking with Jesus for a long time now, and I've learned a lot about him and about myself along the way. One of the things I've learned is that Jesus is always with me, even when I don't feel him. He's there in the good times and the bad times, in the happy times and the sad times. He's always there, walking beside me, guiding me and protecting me.

I've also learned that Jesus is not afraid to go to strange places. In fact, he often goes to places that are considered to be dangerous or off-limits. He goes to places where people are hurting, where people are lost, and where people are in need. He goes to places where no one else wants to go.

I've learned that Jesus is not afraid to go to strange places because he loves people. He loves all people, no matter who they are or what they've done. He loves people who are different from him, people who don't believe in him, and people who have hurt him. He loves everyone, and he wants to show them his love.

I've also learned that Jesus is not afraid to go to strange places because he knows that he is always safe. He knows that his Father is with him, and he knows that his Father will protect him. He knows that no matter where he goes, he is safe in his Father's hands.

I've learned a lot from Jesus about walking in strange places. I've learned that it's okay to be afraid, but that I don't have to let fear stop me from following him. I've learned that it's important to love people, even when they're different from me. I've learned that it's important to trust in God, even when I don't understand what he's doing.

I'm grateful for the lessons that Jesus has taught me about walking in strange places. I'm grateful that he has shown me that I'm not alone, that he loves me, and that he will always be with me.

Here are some tips for walking with Jesus in strange places:

- Don't be afraid to be yourself.
- Be open to new experiences.
- Trust in God.
- Love people.
- Be brave.

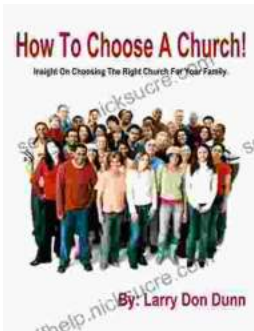

If you follow these tips, you'll be able to walk with Jesus in strange places and make a difference in the world.
